Shape the future of Life Sciences across the globe.

As a Consultant within our Life Sciences practice, you will develop and apply your knowledge of the rules and regulations that enable our clients to bring innovative medications and therapies to the people who need them. You will help our clients develop, improve and transform key regulatory, ethics and compliance operations to gain efficiency and create a competitive advantage. You will collaborate with diverse teams to deliver strategic change and manage risk in a highly regulated environment.

How you will make an impact

- You will collaborate with passionate life science consultants to help companies launch new products, expand into new markets, and navigate emerging risks and regulations, ultimately enabling the delivery of safer and faster treatments to patients. You will assist in analysing regulatory requirements and adapting clients' ways of working to keep pace with changing industry standards
- You will conduct assessments and testing to identify potential risks and support mitigation strategies
- You will prepare clear documentation, reports, and presentations to effectively communicate insights and recommendations
- You will engage in continuous learning and development through hands-on project work, training sessions, and knowledge sharing within a supportive, collaborative team environment

Who we are looking for

- Motivated, eager to apply new technologies and grow in a dynamic, fast-paced environment with evolving priorities and deadlines
- Strong problem-solving skills with an ability to think strategically and pay attention to detail
- Degree in business or scientific field
- Proficiency in Excel, PowerPoint, and creating clear presentations
- Fluent in English and proficient in German or French with good interpersonal skills
