

Job Name Senior Consultant Forensic Investigation

Job Description Entry 1

Location: Zurich

Work Pattern Percentage: 80-100%

How about fighting fraud, battling bribery, and knocking out corruption?

At Deloitte, we assist clients across a broad spectrum of industries by providing specialist advice relating to fraud, anti-bribery and corruption, anti-money laundering and regulatory investigations - a job that frequently involves highly sensitive engagements, which gain regulatory scrutiny and media attention. Are you up for it? Then here's your chance:

We are currently expanding our forensic practice and therefore we are on the lookout for talented, highly motivated and innovative practitioners like you - people with strong managerial experience in the area of investigations, regulatory enquiries and disputes.

Deloitte offers you national and international career opportunities as well as a broad internal and external training program. Are you ready to embark on an exciting adventure?

How you can make an impact:

- Supporting forensic accounting engagements, including financial fraud investigations, fraud prevention, forensic examinations, and the calculation and analysis of claims for financial losses.
- Assist clients with complex business issues and summarise your work effectively in high-quality reports.
- Outstanding communication abilities (written and verbal) in both German and English, including the capacity to create and deliver presentations, conduct interviews, and facilitate workshops for clients.
- Work with leadership, assist the going-to-market activities, and contribute to the elaboration and development of new business.
- Have proficiency in IT, including advanced-level Excel, Word, PowerPoint and other relevant software.

Who we are looking for:

- You're passionate about and very well-versed in managing and executing complex forensic projects such as accounting and fraud investigations, regulatory enquiries and complex business litigation matters.
- Accordingly, you have a related university degree, with special focus on business (and very good grades), as well as about 1-4 years of professional experience in investigations, forensic accounting, ethics/compliance or litigation services in a professional service firm or in industry.
- Ideally you have practical experience in the areas of forensic, compliance, audit, tax advisory, accounting, or controlling.
- You have one of the following designation completed or in progress: CPA, CFE or similar.
- Proficiency in German and English (both required); additional language(s) would be an advantage
